Enrollment increase provides financial stability at Prescott

Priyanka Kumar

Copy Editor

The ERAU Prescott campus has been declared financially stable after several years of decreasing its enrollment and building depreciation. (According to Dr. Frank Ayers, Executive Vice President and Chief Academic Officer of the ERAU Prescott campus, budget cuts were initiated in 2009 which led to a 3.5 million dollar savings in 2010. Ayers stated that this is the current condition is better than in recent years. “We are seeing budget, an honest budget. We know what it takes.”)

More specifically, the school witnessed an increase in enrollment for the 2010-2011 school year. In addition, the alumni and parent funding and support all provided more than others,” Ayers said.

Dr. Ayers stated that the incoming freshman’s campus pass to a financial security goal was collaborative. “We got great support from President Johnson, Dr. Walter and Wetter. Dr. Ayers, who joined the university in January 2010.

Dr. Ayers stated that the lowest point was in 2006 when the school had 1 million dollars in debt but towards the end of the year, “we were improving a number of things in Boston. Significant changes were made last spring leading up to Embry-Riddle’s Florida campus with the addition of the Aviation Physics program.

Dr. Ayers stated the current mission is to continually meet or exceed the school’s financial goals. He wishes to see a modest enrollment growth for the 2011-2012 year. “We want to redefine our role to be stronger than in recent years, “We want to make life better for students,” Dr. Ayers said.

All women social

On September 22, the Diversity and Women’s Center hosted an ice cream social that was sponsored by the Student Government Association. The event was to give women a chance to socialize with one another and converse with others.

All women social

The event was hosted in the Student Center’s Lagoon Ballroom from 5:30 p.m. to 8:00 p.m. The ice cream social was open to all women on campus and from the community.

The purpose of the event was to bring women together and give them a chance to socialize and meet new people. The attendees were able to enjoy ice cream and socialize with others.

The event was hosted by the Diversity and Women’s Center and was open to all women on campus. The center is dedicated to promoting diversity and inclusion on campus and works to support minority students.

The event was also open to the community. Women from the community were able to attend and enjoy the ice cream social.

The ice cream social was a great success and was well attended. Many women enjoyed the ice cream and socialized with others.

The Diversity and Women’s Center will be hosting more events in the future. They are looking for ways to bring women together and give them a chance to socialize.

For more information about the Diversity and Women’s Center and their events, please visit their website at diversity.embry-riddle.edu.

On September 22, students, faculty and community members also crowded a room in the College of Business for a Town Hall meeting with U.S. Representative Karen Handel.

Karen Handel is the Republican candidate for the 24th Congressional district in Georgia. She is running against Democratic incumbent John Lewis. The event was organized by the College of Business Student Government Association.

The meeting was held in room Colburn 350 on campus. Handel was joined by her campaign manager, Rob Stivers, and a few other members of her campaign.

Handel spoke about her campaign and her views on a variety of political issues. She also answered questions from the audience.

The meeting was a great opportunity for students to learn more about the political process and the candidates running for office.

For more information about the meeting and Handel’s campaign, please visit her website at karenhandel.com.

New alumni initiative

An Alpine Robinson

Campus Editor

On September 22, in the OSI Alumni Alumni Social, the Alumni Relations Office invited Alumni, students, faculty, and staff to an open forum on campus to join them for a “Talk to an Eagle.”

At the luncheon, the Alumni Relations Office introduced all of the members of the office for the Alumni to come and meet the rest of the office. They were also given a chance to join an Alumni campaign “Talk to an Eagle.”

During the luncheon the keynote speaker, Michael Pepin, introduced himself and shared his story of giving back to the University and the Alumni Relations office. This message is in line with the new initiative that the Alumni Relations Office has developed.

An alumni of the Embry-Riddle is the individual who has graduated from the University, but also the connection that the alumni are looking for. According to Michael Pepin, this is why alumni serve as the best sales person, because a sales person is really there to loan to the student what they need as are and then give them the information that the alumni is looking for.

An alumni is looking to help students as they enter college and meet new people, as well as to help with professional challenges. They are able to share their experiences and help others get through college.

Comedians stir up laughter on campus

Hannah Langhorn
Guest Reporter

It is never a bad time to have a good laugh. Whether entrance is provided by tick- ets or free, having one of the campus’s comedians perform on stage can put smiles on the faces of many.

Johnny Cardinale, who played guitar during his performance, per- formed the crowd and Hughes to the most shocking things to say. This was done with clarity and wit, which made the audience laugh. It was entertaining comedy that sometimes comes with a bit of a twist from the normal.

Cardinale, who brought music on stage, received continuous applause from the audience.

Hughes and Kevin Shea, who were both part of the group “TNG,” which sponsored the performance, had the most of the audience in their long-sleeved shirts.

Hughes said that the goal of this event was to get out for socialhilnish, but also to make them laugh. They also wanted people to feel comfortable doing so.

Hughes’s performance was very engaging and entertaining. It was a great night to unwind and enjoy some laughter.

Lasers Tag in the West Lawn

The entire event was a social occasion for students to enjoy and have fun. The event included barbecues, games, and music.

The event was hosted by the University of Florida’s Blood Bank. It was a great opportunity for students to donate blood and help those in need.

Students who wanted to participate were able to sign up in advance and receive a ticket for free. The event was held in the Student Center and was open to all students.

The event began with a welcome speech from the University of Florida’s Blood Bank. They thanked everyone for their participation and made a few words about the importance of donating blood.

Students were then able to sign up for a slot and were given a ticket. They were then able to participate in various activities such as Laser Tag, which was located in the west lawn.

Laser Tag was very popular among the students. They had a lot of fun shooting at each other with the lasers. The atmosphere was very lively and exciting.

Students also had the opportunity to receive free food and drinks. They were able to enjoy hamburgers, hot dogs, and soda.

The event concluded with a closing speech from the University of Florida’s Blood Bank. They thanked everyone for their participation and encouraged everyone to continue donating blood.

The event was a great success, and everyone had a lot of fun. It was a great opportunity for students to come together and enjoy a night of laughter and fun.

Campus hosts a different type of play

Michael Petrosino

Athlete of the week

Whitley Louise

COE SRB

The Student Government Association is introducing a new program called “Athllete of the week.” Every week, the athlete decides on a student-athlete who has particularly stood out based on three attributes: Student, peer, and player. This week’s athlete is Whitley Louise of the Soccer team. The Soccer team has an exciting season ahead, and Whitley has been a vital part of the team. She scored several goals and kept a number of shutouts, making her one of the most valuable players on the team. She has a bright future ahead, and we look forward to her continued success.

The Student Government Association has implemented a new program that allows students to submit their ideas and suggestions to the organization. To submit a suggestion, students should visit the Student Government Association’s website and use the Student Suggestion Boxes. The suggestion boxes are located in certain locations throughout the campus, and students can submit ideas or feedback on a variety of topics. The Student Government Association is always looking for ways to improve the campus experience and welcomes student input.

Student Suggestion Boxes

The Student Government Administration program is choosing a new student to be the Student of the Week, for the second time in three weeks. She has been chosen by the National Administration program. She is a senior from Strangnas, Sweden, and is majoring in Information Technology. Her past experience includes being the representative for the classes; can add variables to the current demand. The Student Suggestion Boxes allows students to participate in the proper representative. The Student Suggestion Boxes also has revamped their communication with the Student Government Association. The SGA continues to encourage all student feedback to be submitted to SGA Representatives through SGA suggestion cards, or through the SGA website. This will help make changes to the campus, and give the representative a chance to see if there is a concern about the campus, if you are ever in one of the Student Suggestion Boxes, you can fill out one of the comment cards and drop them in the boxes. Students can also submit suggestions online at http://sga.db.erau.edu.

Obama supports students to strengthen country

As colleges and universities across America, students and their families are heading into the classroom, many for the first time. You're taking part in a journey that will not only determine your future, but the future of this country. We know, for example, that nearly eight in ten new jobs will require workforce training or higher education. And we know that in a global economy, the nation that out-educates us today will out-compete us tomorrow. In the 21st century, America's success depends on the education our students receive. And over the past year and a half, America's community colleges have the highest proportion of college graduates in the world. That's why, soon after I took office, I proposed a ambitious goal for 2020. America will once again have the highest proportion of college graduates in the world. That's why we fought so hard for the Affordable Care Act. That's why we're helping young people to afford college is by helping them to afford health insurance. And that's why we're making college more affordable. As students, you know why this matters. Over the past ten years, college costs have shot up faster than housing, transportation, and even health care costs. The amount student borrowers now owe has more than doubled in just five years. This isn't some abstract issue to me. Michelle and I had big loans to pay off when we graduated. But the burden felt by many students is much worse because they can't afford to go to college at all. That's why we fought so hard for the Affordable Care Act. That's why we're helping young people to afford college. That's why we're helping students to afford health insurance. And that's why we're making college more affordable. As students, you know why this matters. Over the past ten years, college costs have shot up faster than housing, transportation, and even health care costs.

Café FRY is with a class at The House of Learning in Moshiri, Tanzania. Fry was Sport the opportunity through the Army Culture and Language Program (CULP). This program provides cadets a cultural and language immersion experience at numerous locations throughout the world.

Once all the paperwork is complete, Cadets are assigned to various leadership positions within their units and an initial online class is required an essay on how the experience will enhance the individual’s abilities. The CULP program is completed online and involves basic information on language and cultural understanding as well as the role in mission success.

Once the initial online selection is complete, the Cadet is notified of the specific program that he or she will participate in, and must be completed. The CULP program location is not limited to, such things as obtaining a certificate, medical exams, passports and other documents. To this research paper on the assigned excursion, students are required to complete an online language training. Additionally, the students are expected to attend class and complete the assignments.

In the CULP program, Cadets are flown to a link-up site to meet their teams and fix any administrative issues. After the initial online class, Cadets are assigned to groups and placed in cultural excursions, positions within the community to meet the local populace, volunteer in charitable events, and participate in daily language classes. By the end of the month-long program, Cadets have developed a heightened sense of cultural understanding and awareness of the knowledge of the language and beliefs of the country in which they were stationed. In addition to the cultural and language experience gained, Cadets also learn to develop their own leadership skills and abilities. Throughout the program, Cadets are assigned to various leadership positions within their units, and evaluated based on their performance. At the conclusion of the CULP, Cadets receive an overall performance evaluation which will help them to obtain their desired profession within the United States Army upon commissioning. However, the greatest accomplishments gained from this opportunity range from the personal to the performance. Beyond the physical achievements, the experience is the most important.

CULP is a program offered to ARMY ROTC Cadets. If you are interested in learning more about this opportunity as well as many others, please feel free to visit the Army ROTC Department at Lehman Building 206 or to contact your local ROTC program. If you are interested in learning more about the Army, visit the website for the ARMY ROTC at www.armyrotc.com or stop by the Lehman Building 206.

Volleyball sweeps The Sun Conference Mid-Season Tournament
The Warriors started better in the second set, taking an early 10-7 lead. But with the Warriors leading 2-0, the Eagles started a 7-0 run early in the first set put against Webber International. A pair of sweeps on Saturday, Oct. 2 saw the Eagles improve their record to 17-1 on the season and 6-0 in conference play. The Eagles were lead by Abby Hall who tallied 23 kills and 15 digs in Saturday's wins. With 3:04 left in the first set, the Eagles fell behind 4-1. However, the Eagles quickly bounced back, going on an 11-4 run capped by a pair of kills from Abby Hall to take a 12-8 lead. After Warner took things up a notch, the Eagles pulled away quickly and never looked back, taking the third set, 25-12. Hall registered a double-double with 15 kills and 10 digs, while Senior Jahnae Dennis added 12 kills and eight digs. Adrienne Zuniga tallied a match-high 40 assists, leading the offense. The Eagles started off with a 7-0 run in the second set, never looking back, taking it 25-12. Warner was led by Natasha Vazquez tallied a match-high 32 kills and 10 digs.

A Thousand Suns
Linkin Park
Linkin Park lets loose with “A Thousand Suns”

Cory Smith

Guest Reporter

There is nothing cliché about the band’s new album, “A Thousand Suns.” From “Waiting for the End,” which shows off Bennington’s signature voice to the electronic beats of “Robot Boy,” there is little in this album resembling Linkin Park’s old style of sound that put them on the map. Yet, this album is a refresh- ing change from their previous work, never releasing from similar artists that have seemed to develop- up. Rather than rely on con- trived, distortion-clad, “A Thousand Suns” is much more sincere and vocally driven than many of LP’s counterparts. Instead of relying on a few tem- poral songs, the album is top of the line, making the music so far. Olive is not sure what contains the album as a single, coherent track. This experience starts with an electronic beat intermari- gled with delicate female vocals while slowly morphing into a guitar-driven song that is reminiscent of “The Little Things Give You Away” from Minutes to Midnight. Just as quickly, the album swings to the galloping drum beats of an Arabian hybrid “When They Break,” which is bright society-reliant and a breath of fresh air. The music returns to melodies underscored by the iconic sounds that newer counterparts. Instead of set- ting on a collection of dis- torted riffs, “A Thousand Suns” is much more simplistic, distorted riffs, “A Thousand Suns” is much more simplistic, distorted riffs, “A Thousand Suns” is much more simplistic, distorted riffs, “A Thousand Suns” is much more simplistic, distorted riffs, “A Thousand Suns” is much more simplistic, distorted riffs, “A Thousand Suns” is much more simplistic, distorted riffs, “A Thousand Suns” is much more simplistic, distorted riffs, “A Thousand Suns” is much more simplistic, distorted riffs, “A Thousand Suns” is much more simplistic, distorted riffs. From here, LP front man Chad Bennington goes on to show off his vocal range before shores, screams, and industrial-ek instrument melodies. However, teary up the harmonic under- tones that has held up to this point. Easy A delivers new take

Alan Larson

Another teen movie hit the box office last week, by the name of Easy A. This romantic comedy stars Emma Stone in the lead actress, playing an upper-class, MATLAB program, Olive Penderghast, who falls through the plot of mystery after a sense of rumors surface at her local high school. The film also stars Amanda Bynes, playing Marianne, a conservative Christian who is misled by the rumors and shaggy appearance of the film. The film plays tribute to Nathaniel Hawthorne’s 1850 novel, “The Scarlett Letter,” in that Olive wears a red letter “A” on her outfits, symbolizing her adultery and the rumors that claim to be true. During Olive’s daily video blog she also makes flashbacks liênis- tic to the 1974 “Scarlett Letter” film. This video blog she cre- ates in how her story is told, and is told from the past, acting out as if in the present, with occasional narration. With each day comes a new rumor, and with each rumor, Olive’s reputation sinks even deeper. Still, the rumor trail continues and continues to past teen mov- ers become so richly that the becomes a social outcast. This becomes worried about how to get her good reputation back. Lois goes getting piled on top of more lies, which makes the truth seem even more dis- tant for her. Olive is not sure what contains the album as a single, coherent track. This experience starts with an electronic beat intermari- gled with delicate female vocals while slowly morphing into a guitar-driven song that is reminiscent of “The Little Things Give You Away” from Minutes to Midnight. Inception; a look back

Ideas such as, if our reality is ever since I went to go see it. Everything is how it seems, or is that I have been thinking about making this movie so great. Despite his being her first solo-leading role, she does an excellent job and brings fresh talent to the screen. Amanda Bynes comes back on the spot- light as her first big movie since 2007. These two are cut as the protagonist and antagonist, respectively. While it has been titled “A Thousand Suns” for its power and strength and being obviously awesome.
