Hybrid courses return to ERAU

By Polya Karimian

Sunday, October 5, 2010

This fall semester, Embry-Riddle re-introduced hybrid courses on campus providing students with a new way to learn. In the past, hybrid courses were available at the College of Business and the College of Aviation. This year, hybrid courses are now part of the program for all students.

The new style of course delivery was implemented as a trial this semester to determine if it would be effective. It is important to note that there are different levels of hybrid courses and a hybrid course can be as flexible as traditional face-to-face courses.

For example, some hybrid courses do not have the online component. This type of course, called a "hybrid I," requires the students to attend class and complete the assignments online. Other hybrid courses, called "hybrid II," are more flexible and allow students to complete most of their work online. In these courses, students are provided a flexible schedule to complete their coursework.

The hybrid courses were well received by students and professors. According to Dr. Bailey, Associate Vice President of Student Affairs, the hybrid courses were very well received by students. "The students seemed to enjoy the flexibility and convenience when choosing to attend class or complete coursework online," Dr. Bailey said.

In order to participate in the hybrid courses, students must first register for the course and then complete an online orientation. The online orientation provides students with information about the course and the expectations for their participation. It also helps students to understand the logistics of the hybrid course and how to access the online course materials.

The hybrid courses are offered by the College of Business, the College of Aviation, and the College of Science. Each college offers a variety of courses, including business, aviation, and science courses.

"The hybrid courses are designed to be flexible and accommodating to the needs of our students," Dr. Bailey said. "We want to provide our students with the opportunity to learn in a way that works best for them."

According to Dr. Bailey, the hybrid courses are an opportunity for students to improve their time management skills. "The hybrid courses require students to be self-motivated and manage their own time," Dr. Bailey said. "This is an important skill for students to develop, no matter what their major or field of study."

Meet and Greet with two air show pilots

Tyler Lonergan

Guest Reporter

If asked about his community, the other 5,000 students on campus can probably name his name. Tyler Lonergan is known for his work about this weekend’s Wings of Freedom tour. He is the national analyst, joined the campus in the auditorium to talk about November elections and upcoming midterm elections.

Lonergan started off by taking the audience through a series of滚 over the past few elections. He asked the audience, “How many of you have voted in the last election?” The majority of the audience raised their hands.

Lonergan explained why it is important to vote. “Without the vote, you have no say. The vote is something that ensures that the people’s voices are heard. It is the only way you can be represented.”

Lonergan then went on to talk about the upcoming midterm elections. He mentioned the possible shift in Congress during the November elections, which would be significant for many people. He emphasized the importance of registering to vote and turning out on Election Day.

Lonergan also touched on the role of third-party candidates in the upcoming elections. He explained that third-party candidates can often sway the outcome of elections by taking votes from one of the major parties.

Lonergan ended his talk by encouraging the audience to get involved in the political process. He urged listeners to register to vote, stay informed about the issues, and participate in the political process. He reminded them that their voice matters and that every vote counts.

Lonergan’s talk was well-received by the audience, who asked many questions throughout the presentation. The audience seemed engaged and interested in the topic.

Juliet Oakley

Guest Reporter

Banned Books Week is an annual event celebrating the freedom to read and the importance of the first amendment. The Hunt Library celebrated its 16th annual Banned Books Week from October 26 to November 1.

During the event, the library hosted a variety of activities aimed at raising awareness about the importance of free expression and intellectual freedom. These included panel discussions, a screening of a documentary, and a reading of excerpts from banned and challenged books.

The library also featured a display of some of the banned and censored books, along with information about why they were banned. Among the books featured were works by authors such as Margaret Atwood, Harper Lee, and James Baldwin.

In addition, the library offered a series of events and programs throughout the week, including a talk on the history of censorship and a workshop on how to write about controversial topics.

Overall, the Banned Books Week event was a success, with many attendees taking part in the activities and learning about the importance of free expression and intellectual freedom.

On Friday, October 1, the Student Life, Alumni and Athletics, with the help of ERAU Dining Services, hosted First Fridays, an event that allowed students to work on our campus look better. Between 6 pm and 8 pm, gloves and garbage bags were available in the SGA office for those students who volunteered to collect garbage all around the facilities and residence halls of Embry-Riddle. This is the only way to help us “Keep our campus beautiful.”

The idea behind First Fridays is to increase our awareness of how we can help keep our campus clean and beautiful. It is something that occurs on the first Friday of every month. It is open to everyone—Embry-Riddle, both employees and students. We want to see our campus look clean and beautiful! The next date for First Fridays will be on November 5 and December 3. The ERAU Dining Services will provide all the garbage bags and gloves. We also want to thank everyone who volunteered this past time that participated last Friday in support.

Ryan Vaz

Associate Justice

The Counseling Center will be hosting a “Lift Your Mood Day” event on October 19th from 8-10 am. This is why we have scheduled this event for a morning where you can have a more casual conversation. You can come by to talk about anything that you would like to and the counselor can help you “Lift Your Mood."

Premise

“Exercise gives you endorphins!"

Benefits

- Lowers stress levels

Scheduling for a pre-program.

At this time, the student will have the opportunity to select a career they would like to orient themselves to. This orientation will be for the students who are interested in participating in the “Flight Department” talk. At the end of this talk, the student will have the opportunity to sign up for the event.

New Pledges show promise

By the time Ruck Week ended on September 18, the Brothers of the Psi Kappa Alpha chapter were able to recruit twenty-two new pledges from the pool of incoming freshmen. Following the new Pledge Class’s first panel Wednesday on September 22, the challenges that were put forward to the new fall Gamma class seemed to be a bit overwhelming to a couple of the pledges. With 20 pledges at hand, the current Fraternity is set to provide this crop of freshmen the opportunity to get acquainted with their new big brothers. For the ceremony is set to take place on Monday September 27.

With the semester still going strong and now, it is looking like Eta Iota will be having plenty of fun in the upcoming weeks. At this point, the new Blackboard has made the transition back to school a little more difficult for both students and faculty. Riddle Aeronautical University uses QEP to prepare for SACS merger and the future of training for the military. Universal Helicopters is involved in this training.

The QEP is one item that will become a part of the process in the development of the QEP. Following five years to evaluate the program, the Blackboard will be complete an action. The QEP is one of the most important aspects of the program to ensure that the QEP is not hindered by any difficulties. After his first win, Joseph decided to further refine his entry and expand the course of one winter break to two. The Blackboard is a framework to build a wind tunnel in the garage. Before the Blackboard, Joseph won ISEF first place in his 12th-grade science fair, and he was invited to the annual ExxonMobil Science Symposium. Joseph Gerner's presence at the symposium was notable. This was great for the family, because it is a major event that will help Joseph get on the train or jump off the train. It is his passion, and it has been a passion for many years. The drag-and-drop option for those instructors that are new to the Blackboard has received good marks. However, the problems with the new Blackboard persist. This was great for the family, because it is a major event that will help Joseph get on the train or jump off the train.
Race car hero remembered by daughter

It was a hot summer day in Elmhurst, Illinois, it was nearly sixty years old. We drove down Church Street, the street my dad grew up on and pulled into the driveway of my grand- mother’s house. This was the place my dad called home for his whole life, aside the days he was racing.

He tells me the tales of how he would be in the driveway all day and all night building cars. “When the kids in high school were out partying, I was all day and all night building cars. “When the kids in high school were out partying, I was all day and all night building cars.”

The crazy thing about my dad’s dedication is that he has never given up, that’s what made him a great racer.

I hope to tell him in October of his memory continues to live on forever and he will not be forgotten. We’ve nominated many trophies to the NASCAR Hall of Fame and the Motorsports Hall of Fame, as well as to some smaller museums. If you’re reading this story, I hope to tell him in October of his memory continues to live on forever and he will not be forgotten. Virgin Galactic is a company that offers tourists a chance to fly into space on a suborbital trajectory. The company was founded in 2005 by Sir Richard Branson, business tycoon and founder of Virgin Group.

“We just finished building SpaceShipTwo. We are 18 months away from taking people into space,” said Sir Richard Branson, founder of Virgin Galactic.

Customers pay $200,000 to reserve a future ticket. Virgin Galactic has already collected $47 million in deposits from 335 future astronauts who are awaiting their turn to fly into space.

The SpaceShipTwo is carried to an altitude of about 50,000 feet by the mothership, a jet-powered aircraft called the White Knight Two. There, it is dropped. After falling a safe distance, the spacecraft fires its rocket motor for about 70 seconds, which blasts the spacecraft to 2,600 mph. The spacecraft then coasts to its peak altitude of about 68 miles, which is 6 miles above the Kármán line—the edge of space. At 80,000 feet, the spacecraft begins a 25-minute glide back to the spaceport.

Currently the company plans to build five SpaceShipTwo spacecraft. The first, the VSS Enterprise, was rolled out on December 7, 2009.

The SpaceShipTwo is based off the SpaceShipOne, which won the Ansari X-Prize in 2004. The Ansari X-Prize was a competition to develop the first re-usable non-government funded spacecraft.
