

Short-Short Story

Our story begins with a boy growing up in the desolate Midwest of the United States. The boy's name is Trevor. Just by looking at Trevor you would not think of much of him; a scrawny kid average height no real key physical attributes that make him stand out amongst his peers. However, Trevor is insanely smart especially for someone who is offered almost less than an adequate public education. He will need to make sure that he can use this strength if he wants to become a pilot someday. Will Trevor be able to excel with his incredible intellectuality? Or will he be stuck to the life of a farmhand for the rest of his life.

It is his senior year in school and with the SAT and ACT approaching fast Trevor knows that this may be his only chance to have a way out of his fate of being stuck in his hometown for forever. As one may have expected Trevor excelled on his SAT and ACT, his scores turned out to be one of the highest in the state. It is now almost time for graduation and Trevor has been receiving letters from colleges offering a full academic scholarship. Trevor finally has the opportunity to leave his small farm town in the Midwest and follow his dreams. His last decision is to decide which college he would like to attend.

Fast forward two years down the road and Trevor is excelling in his classes and is about to begin his junior year in college. With his degree Trevor will be able to join the military and become a pilot. Finally, Trevor can see the light at the end of his journey. From being a less than average kid growing up to being a college student at a well-respected university. Trevor manages to finish his schooling and obtain his bachelor's degree and has made his decision to join the Navy and become a fighter pilot. With his last summer as a civilian before heading to Officer school in the fall; he reflects on his life and wonders how he managed to get to where he is today. Humbled by his accomplishments he is also proud of what he has accomplished and can not wait to see where his journey will take the once small town kid he once was.