Adventures of an Even Date

In the room where the machines and the workers are, it is very light. The fluorescent ceiling lights reflect off the open machines, and a few other machines are switched off, casting a shadowy light from the only light shining from the ceiling. The workers are silhouetted and backlit, their dark figures etched against the bright background of the machines. The room is quiet, almost too quiet, with only the hum of machinery and the occasional thud of a tool striking a part.

The workers are busy, their hands deftly manipulating the metal parts, their eyes scanning the intricate designs. They are focused, almost trance-like, their minds lost in the routine of their work. The sounds of the machines are deafening, a symphony of clattering, whirring, and humming. It is a world apart, a world of precision and efficiency.

The machines are massive, towering above the workers, their sleek, metallic surfaces reflecting the light. They are precision instruments, designed to perform with the utmost accuracy. The workers are equally precise, their movements timed to a fraction of a second.

The room is a testament to the power of human ingenuity, a place where machines and workers work together in harmony. It is a world of hard work and dedication, where the results are nothing short of miraculous.

Film Quarterly

A remarkable, intelligent and captivating human drama. Simply for the most thrilling and respectable of the Bible-Ethan pictures ever made...

The prominent theme of the story is appropriately and triumphantly conveyed in some of the most forceful personal conflicts ever played in cinema on the screen.

Bobby Crowder
New York Times

The best of Hollywood's super-dramatists...The script is a wall of words that is sometimes dull, resounding with good rhetoric and quiet poetry...and a standard of excellence by which coming generations of screen spectators can expect to be measured...

The Running time for this movie is 212 minutes.

Civil Air Patrol Concludes Banner Year

MAXWELL AFB — Nineteen ninety-eight proved to be a banner year for Civil Air Patrol (CAP) as the volunteer nationwide organization enjoyed a new record during what it has been doing successfully, for more than 57 years — searching, rescuing, and training.

During the first week of 1998, CAP units across the nation recorded an average bringing the voluneteer organization’s total for the year to 91. The 91 saves are believed to be a world record for the official activity of the U.S. Civil Air Patrol. From early records, the number of saves is incomplete or nonexistent, but the highest number of saves recorded in recent years was in 1990.

Civil Air Patrol was engaged in more missions (1992 for 1998, 7989 for 1997) and flew more miles (15,641 in 1997) than in 1996. Flying hours for 1998 also increased, reaching 24,990 compared to 19,004 in 1997.

The number of "saves" (search operations counted toward the total number of incidents, which increased to 251 in 1997 from 249 in 1996, the number 1997). In addition to search and rescue operations, CAP also responded to requests for disaster assistance from local and state officials. These included floods, floods, and flooding situations.

In Arizona, Kentucky, Missouri, and Texas, snowstorms in Indiana, Kentucky, Massachusetts, Michigan, New Hampshire, New York, and Ohio and a tornado in Florida.

Keep on Rolling

Just because there is no snow or sledding does not mean there is no winter sports in Florida. In the summer the action is at the beach, but during the cold months, it all happens at the river and lake, and it seems to be fun for all, even the beginners.
