Three Avion journalists receive awards at national convention

Three Embry-Riddle journalists, all Avion staff members, received awards at a recent national convention.

John Marshall of Ocala, Florida rolls his B-25J "Carol Jean" out for flight during the Valiant Air Commands Airshow 1983. This B-25 was one of 4 at TICO this past weekend and is beautifully restored as a "Mitchell" assigned to North Africa during WWII. Although built in 1944, this aircraft never saw combat but it was used in the motion picture "Catch-22." (Photo by Brian Nicklas)

The Embry-Riddle Chapter of the Student Insurance Association was given a gavel sign to open the meeting. The gavel is made from the same wood used for the 1982 convention. It is one of a kind and is a symbol of continuity and tradition.

According to Hardy, you are not required to have a "guilt complex or a sense of victimization" to fly in this aircraft. You are simply asked to follow a few rules. Hardy said that the aircraft is a rental and not a "guilt complex or a sense of victimization" to fly in this aircraft. You are simply asked to follow a few rules. Hardy said that the aircraft is a rental and not a part of the student's college education.

Enjoy the photos and see you at the next convention!

Lawrence Saucedo, professor of biology at Embry-Riddle, moderated the panel discussion. The panelists were: Professor of Biology, Dr. Roger Cheadle, Professor of Environmental Science, Dr. George Rosenthal, and Dr. Robert Coulter, both of whom are environmental scientists at the University of Florida.

The panelists discussed the importance of environmental conservation and the need for immediate action to address environmental problems. They emphasized the need for cooperation between government agencies, industry, and local communities to develop sustainable solutions.

In his closing remarks, Dr. David McNeer introduced various experts on issues related to environmental management. He expressed concern that the panelists were only giving a partial view of the issues and that more specific solutions are needed to address the complex and interconnected problems.

Following Dr. McNeer's opening, Dr. DeGroote introduced various experts on issues related to environmental management. He expressed concern that the panelists were only giving a partial view of the issues and that more specific solutions are needed to address the complex and interconnected problems.

A sobering realization

By R.K. Smith

In the early morning hours of Saturday, March 6, the news of four student fatalities occurred suddenly, without warning. This incident was instantly tragic in its violent, sudden impact. As a result, many of us were shocked, grieved, and dismayed. Many felt the effects of this tragedy were irreparable.

The tragedy of the four student fatalities has had a profound impact on the entire FAU community. The loss of these young people has left a void in the lives of everyone who knew them. The impact of their deaths has been felt in every corner of our campus, and it has resonated far beyond our immediate community.

The news of this tragedy has been shared with the media, and the information provided has been limited. The authorities are working diligently to investigate the circumstances surrounding the incident, and we are awaiting further details as they become available.

The thoughts and feelings of our community are with the families of the deceased students, as well as with all those who were affected by this tragedy. We extend our deepest sympathy and support to everyone who has been touched by this event.

The impact of this tragedy will continue to be felt for some time to come. Our thoughts and prayers are with those who are mourning and coping with the loss of loved ones. As a community, we must come together in solidarity, and find ways to support one another during this difficult time.

The events of March 6 have left a lasting impact on our campus and community. The loss of these young people has been a sobering reminder of the fragility of life and the importance of cherishing every moment.

Dean addresses S.G.A.

At the February meeting of the Student Administrative Council, Dean Winkler was present to address the Student Government Association (SGA).

Dean Winkler noted the importance of the SGA in the overall institutional mission of the university. He recognized the SGA as a valuable tool for student representation and empowerment.

Dean Winkler stressed the importance of communication and collaboration between the SGA and university administration. He highlighted the role of the SGA in advocating for student needs and interests.

Dean Winkler concluded his remarks by encouraging students to get involved and participate in the affairs of the university. He emphasized the importance of student leadership and the impact it can have on the campus community.

Pro women

Wendy Mark

To the Editor:

The question of female flight training has once again been brought to the forefront. It is a matter of concern to the entire aviation community, particularly to the National Organization for Women (NOW), which has been at the forefront of this issue.

Our organization, the National Organization for Women, is deeply concerned with the lack of equal opportunity for women in the aviation industry. The aviation community has a responsibility to ensure that women are given equal opportunities to train and compete for flight positions.

NOW is committed to working towards a workplace that is free from discrimination and bias. We urge the aviation community to take immediate action to address this issue and create a more inclusive and diverse environment.

Sincerely,

Wendy Mark

More women

Karen Johnson

To the Editor:

The aviation industry has a long history of exclusion and discrimination, particularly towards women. The role of the National Organization for Women (NOW) in advocating for women's rights in aviation is commendable.

It is important for the aviation community to recognize the contributions and achievements of women in the aviation industry. Women have played a pivotal role in shaping the industry, and their contributions should be celebrated.

NOW's efforts to promote gender equality in aviation are commendable, and we urge the aviation community to support these initiatives. Together, we can create a more inclusive and diverse aviation industry.

Sincerely,

Karen Johnson

Golden Earrings is back

By Michael Johnson

Remember Golden Earrings? They were the band that came out with the popular hit "Back in the Dark". It's been eleven years that have passed since that hit single. Since then, the all-band, very energetic Earrings have released a string of albums that, although, very popular in Europe, have been seen in peace according to America.

Alphonso the Long Island Alien and the now-caso-alive Alphonso helped each other achieve the dream of reaching. With the release of the album, not only do they have the potential for serious success in their hit, "Fright Zone", but also in a career where that output can mean that the band is back in full form. There are no set performances scheduled for this tour. We are looking forward to hearing the new songs on this album, which is set to be released on March 12th.

Step up!... out...

By Anu Jha Roy

This week, Step Up! is thrilled to announce the return of our popular "Step Out!" event. Our four-week season of "Step Out!" will be on display in the next issue of the university newspaper.

The trip includes a trip to the New York State Fair, a visit to the city's main museum, and a night out in the city's nightlife district. The event is sure to be a hit with students of all ages. For more information, please visit our website at stepup.org.

Correction

In the February issue of "Step Out!", one of the events scheduled for the month of April was incorrectly listed. The correct date for the event is April 23, not April 24.

Sports

Philadelphia Phillies look good in N.L.

This week's column marks the beginning of my first annual predictions season. I venture that the Philadelphia Phillies will make the playoffs but I will not predict the rest of my predictions, for they require much more research. I must admit that I am particularly interested in the National League and this year I'll take a look at the "Bart's League." The National League ought to have the advantage of one of the more competitive divisions in baseball this year. Always providing a discriminato-ric stint in the city, this year should be no exception. Last year's win, the St. Louis Cardinals, haven't changed that much from last year's championship form, but the Philadelphia Phillies have vastly improved over last year. They have guaranteed themselves the services of their best players, and they are still in the top four teams in the National League. They have also acquired left-handed power hitter Steve Yeager and Tom Tresh, which will be a tremendous improvement for the club in the coming season. Although they won't be the best defending second baseman in the game in 1983, they have a solid 40-year old manager in Hungarian Bud Nagey to take his place, thus succeeding in replacing the co-Bart, Ronness and Pete Rose.

Today is the National League West, the Atlanta Braves, who followed up last season after a very poor start, should be right back on top this year. The experience they gained after last year's season and superior players like Steve Karsay and Steve Forsberg should be invaluable to their quest for the pennant this year. Now that Bob Horner and company know what it is like to be in a pennant race, the Braves will have a much better understanding of the game this coming season. The best team in the league besides the St. Louis Cardinals is the Los Angeles Dodgers. The Dodgers on the other hand, have lost two of their perennial stars in riding Cleon Jones and Ron Cey to other teams in the off season. With the loss of these two players, Los Angeles will have the obligation of finding a replacement that can add to the already strong lineup. The Cubs, on the other hand, have no proven players and will have to rely more on their pitching staff. The Brewers, are a better team than last season, however, they will need to rely on their pitching staff to take them to the post season, thus succeeding in replacing their co-Bart, Ronness and Pete Rose.

Leading the pack out of the first turn is Bob "Hurricane" Hannah. He'll put all three supercross races he entered at the Daytona International Speedway this past weekend.

-E-RAU surfers host NSSA tourney

On Saturday, March 5, the E-RAU Storm Rippers decided to add another month of planning for hosting the first annual Florida NSSA Surfing Championship at New Smyrna Beach. Originally scheduled for January 29, the event was postponed due to a flood which hit the area earlier this season. The event was postponed until this weekend to ensure good surf and waves, and provide some "nut" for the surfers. Fortunately, the forecast for this weekend was favorable and the surfers turned out for the final event of the season. The event was covered by several newspapers in the area.

The Florida NSSA Championship was one of the best organized and well run season contests in the history of the NSSA. Plaques were presented to the winners of the finals as well as to several participants who performed well this year.

Complied by several members of the E-RAU Storm Rippers, the event was a success. The outdoor activities included a barbecue, a beach party, and a bonfire. The event was also covered by several newspapers in the area.

Faculty's defeat greens

There was a small crowd on hand on March 12 to watch the first tennis match between the University of Miami and the University of Illinois. The Miami team had been out of action for a month due to the winter break, but they came back to take on the University of Illinois. The match was a close one, and the Greens won 5-4. The Greens made some strong points, but were unable to hold them. The Miami team was well prepared and they were able to hold their own in the doubles matches. The Greens were defeated in the singles matches, but they were able to hold their own in the doubles matches. On Monday, February 25, the Honorary Team Delta Airline's alumnus, [Name], donated a training session for the faculty of the Aviation Maintenance Technology Department. [Name] stated that Delta Airline's [FCC] work would give the students a unique opportunity to observe the aircraft up close. The idea is that the students will witness a plane in operation, and be able to identify and familiarize themselves with the different parts of the plane. This does not mean that the students will ever have the opportunity to be in the plane itself, but it is an opportunity to see different parts of the plane and to learn about their functions. This is a unique opportunity for the students to learn about aircraft maintenance and operations.

Mr. [Name] expressed his gratitude to Delta Airline's for the opportunity to present this program to the students. He stated that the students would be able to observe the aircraft up close, and to learn about the different parts of the plane. This is a unique opportunity for the students to learn about aircraft maintenance and operations.

The faculty in the Aviation Maintenance Technology Department has expressed their gratitude to Mr. [Name] for his generosity and for providing the students with this unique opportunity to learn about aircraft maintenance and operations. They have stated that the students will be able to observe the aircraft up close, and to learn about the different parts of the plane. This is a unique opportunity for the students to learn about aircraft maintenance and operations.
