J-lot opens to students

By Jeff Guzzetti
Avion Staff Reporter

Yesterday, March 30, E-RAU maintenance personnel proceeded to paint and mark off a line of 45 parking spaces inside the J-lot parking area. The spaces will now be available for students.

J-lot is the parking area which flanks the east side of the academic complex here on campus. The entire area used to be reserved only for faculty and staff. But now, 45 parking spaces that stretch across the far east edge of J-lot have been marked with bright yellow lines and the word "student" has been printed on each spot. The remaining spaces will still be reserved for faculty and staff.

Future managers need ability to change with time

By Bert Kaufmann
Avion Staff Reporter

Prior to addressing the members of Omicron Delta Kappa, a National Leadership Honor Society, Mr. Bill Key, the Director of Industrial Relations for Lockheed-Georgia, was interviewed about the challenges facing the management of aircraft manufacturers and the operations of his company.

Key believes that the success of future managers will be dependent upon their ability to manage change. American business has moved away from the "comfort level," and this move Key believes has made strategic long-range planning a necessity.

At Lockheed-Georgia, long-term plans are reevaluated at least once a week. He does not foresee any major engineering breakthroughs within his industry within the next decade, but believes that technical breakthroughs will have to occur in the field of economics, "The name of the game, is economics," he states, "both from a producer standpoint and a user standpoint."

Another challenge he sees facing his industry is the need to give adequate attention to creating the knowledgeable management and production work force which it will need during the next ten years. Most training programs, he believes will be "in-house" and accredited. Other industry-wide changes which he expects include reduction of the semi-skilled labor force and establishment of entry level pay rates.

Since Lockheed announced that it would cease production of the popular L-1011 Tri-Star, which is produced in Palmdale, California, it has assumed the role solely of a military and space contractor. This move has long been encouraged by the financial community.

When questioned about the decision, Key explained that Lockheed had built the Electra, Constellation and L-1011 because someone with authority said that the company should be in the commercial aircraft business. He said that Lockheed "would not re-enter the commercial market unless we were not only able to compete, but to succeed."

Although Pan American Airways had indicated that L-1011-500's are more suitable to its long-range, overwater route system than either the new Boeing 757 or 767, and both Boeing and Airbus Industry had been approached to continue production of the L-1011, Key indicated that it was doubtful that another manufacturer would continue its production. Boeing is currently involved in the production and marketing of two new aircraft and the L-1011 is a direct competitor with Airbus' A-300.

Key is responsible for the hiring of both professional and technical personnel, and he commented that Lockheed-Georgia does not seek candidates for employment who have just graduated with a Masters degree. He said these employees usually are disillusioned with their job and change jobs at least once.

Another large problem is graduates' beliefs that there is a line of demarcation between workers and management. Key says there is none, instead "Everybody works." However, Lockheed-Georgia does have its own masters program with Georgia Tech and Georgia State. Later Key's associate, Mr. Ronnie Rainwater, Director of Professional Employment at Lockheed-Georgia, stressed the importance of an applicant's interest in the company, and his ability to communicate as being basic to his ability to accomplish the assigned task.

Crippled Seminole lands flawlessly

By Max Corneau
Avion Staff Reporter

On Wednesday afternoon, March 24, as the weather in the Daytona area was approaching visual flight minimums, Piper Seminole N57ER was demonstrating a shortfield landing at New Smyrna Beach airport. Upon touchdown, the left wing dipped radically, thus forcing a go-around. The Embry-Riddle twin engine trainer had lost its left main landing gear. None of the three persons on board were injured during the emergency landing which ensued at Daytona Beach Regional Airport.

Dr. Tony DiGirolamo spoke at length concerning the incident. When demonstrating the short field landing at New Smyrna, instructor pilot Lloyd Bernstein noticed the left wing dip excessively. Full power was applied in order to execute a go-around as those on board saw that the left main landing gear had broken and was attached by hydraulic lines. About 20 or 30 minutes later the lines severed and the gear fell into a swamp."

On board were instructor pilot Lloyd Bernstein, student Barry Connell, and observer Craig Korgsgard. According to Dr. DiGirolamo, "none of the three pilots on board indicated that a hard landing had taken place. At this point, we have absolutely no idea of why that gear let go. The FAA is sending an investigation team down to possibly determine what happened. We simply do not know why the gear came off."

Out of this unfortunate incident, a few sparks of luck are evident. Fortunately, at the time of the incident, Tom Kirton, multi-engine flight director, was sitting on the ground at New Smyrna Beach Airport. As Dr. DiGirolamo explained, "Tom saw the incident, immediately took off and started to talk to the crew and describe the damage to them."

At this point, the crew called Riddle Operations and we put into effect our emergency plan. These procedures put the chief pilot in direct contact with the airplane, so as to give the proper instructions to insure maximal safety."

During this particular incident

Paul McDuffey was the chief pilot. McDuffey maintained contact with the aircraft while assimilating information from several other sources. Dr. DiGirolamo furthered his explanation of the emergency ground procedures, "We touched base with the Piper Aircraft Co., as well as the chief mechanic at DBA. With input received from all parties, we determined that just prior to touchdown, the left engine should be feathered and that the left propeller be in a horizontal position. We determined that 25 degrees of flaps to slow the airplane would be necessary."

Bernstein conquered and complied with the instructions he received from Riddle-Operations.

Soon after they received instructions, the crew aboard PA-44, N57ER reviewed their emergency procedures. At the same time, on the ground at Daytona, fire trucks and other support equipment were screaming toward the approach end of runway 24R. Early in the incident there was speculation as to whether foaming the runway was a wise safety precaution. Mr. Michael McMahon, Aviation Safety Engineer spoke about foam, "In this situation we decided against foam for a couple of reasons. First of all, time was not on our side, in order to sufficiently foam the runway we would have needed too much valuable time. The weather was already IFR and deteriorating." A second reason Mr. McMahon pointed out was that an extremely large section of runway needs foam for any effect at all, in this case the aircraft would have gone in and out of the foam too quickly. Since weather was below visual minimums, the injured aircraft came into Daytona's runway 24R on an instrument approach. Runway 24R was closed to accommodate the emergency landing, amazingly, the runway was only down for 17 minutes. There was no delay to any of Eastern or Delta airlines' departures or arrivals.

As aircraft 57 echo romeo droned out of the clouds, an extremely intense crowd of about 200 students and faculty watched with hopeful eyes. Instructor pilot Bernstein executed the emergency landing with textbook perfection. Dr.

Airport expansion

30 acres available for development

By Bo Alkaninis
Avion Staff Reporter

The construction you must have noticed on the block of land between Clyde Morris, Volusia and Catalina is only the beginning of the Daytona Beach Regional Airport's expansion plans. The road being constructed will open up approximately 30 acres for development into an office park, at an initial cost of $600,000. Two multi-million dollar restaurants proposed by General Mills may also be located in the area next to the office park if all goes smoothly.

The construction taking place now involves laying water and sewer pipes for their "Spinal Road." Once completed this land will be ready for development. Several real estate brokers have been appointed by the County Council to solicit interested parties who will build on this parcel. At the moment no concrete plans have been made nor have any leases been signed. Rent generated from the office park will go to the airport for use in its expansion plans.

The area of land by Volusia and Midway at the airport entrance is the proposed site of two new large restaurants. A division of General Mills is planning on building these elegant eating establishments, Case Gallardo and Good Earth, which will require $3.5 million in land improvements. Case Gallardo is a restaurant famous in the Orlando area for its posh interior and grand atmosphere. As of this time General Mills has been given a lease but the deal has not been finalized. Following signing of the lease, construction should begin within several months bringing the airport much needed annual revenue.

These developments on airport property are only the tip of the iceberg. As the airport is able to generate more revenue it will be able to implement more of its Master Plan. The formation of the master Plan in 1979 was based on expected increases in traffic and called for a new terminal to be built. Traffic since the study has not increased as was expected so concrete measures have not been taken, except for plans to generate more funds. To date the airport is working on the schematics of a new terminal by reviewing data, estimating necessary space for operations, and considering what additional measures will be needed. Final decisions will be made after everything has been considered and sufficient revenue from leases has been generated.

Construction halted on Raquetball courts

By John Scribner
Avion Staff Member

Construction of the student raquetball courts has been halted due to what Daytona Beach Provost Jack Fidel terms, "a re-evaluation of the proposed location."

According to the Provost, the site is being re-evaluated to determine if the proposed location is being utilized to its best advantage.

The foundation for the raquetball courts has already been laid west of the swimming pool.

Bruce Croft, Director of Facilities and Development says that points being discussed include plans for different implementation methods, as well as which way the building should face.

Mr. Hunt and Dr. Ledewitz are presently reviewing the plans for the courts," Croft said. Though he declined to comment further, Croft did admit that with all the other construction projects currently underway on this campus and at Prescott, the raquetball courts "are not the highest priority."

"I'm hoping the courts will be up by mid-April," Provost Fidel volunteered. Costs are projected to be approximately $150,000. According to Fidel, the funds are committed to the project.

We are not perfect

Editorial

The entire Avion staff has taken critical note of the March 17 issue of The Avion, an issue marked by fervent attack. The staff at this time would like to address these problems and announce some new policies arising from them.

The major brunt of criticism was directed at a letter to the editor entitled "Disappointed." The letter's author expressed disapproval that Julien Oleon had not been elected as SGA president. In a letter of this sort it must be pointed out that the views printed are not that of The Avion, but that of the individual writer. However, in this case as in many others, the writer preferred not to have his name printed, thereby allowing no counter remarks to be made.

To deter this from happening again the staff has unanimously decided to require names on all letters printed. As for future letters written to the editor the policy of "run as is" will be used. In the case that numerous errors are found in a letter it will be held for corrections. No major changes will be made in types of letters accepted, but writers may be asked to tone down the content of their letters. Realizing that The Avion is the only way many students have to air opinions, the staff will try to keep censorship down to a minimum.

An editorial comment must also be made concerning Julien P. Oleon's editorial. As part of the Editorial Staff of The Avion, Mr. Oleon has the right to write prearranged editorials. In this case it may have been in bad taste to allow him to review the election, but The Avion has and will stand behind its staff members.

The Avion does make mistakes, but we strive to avoid errors. Our track record attests to our resolve.

Here to serve

Guest Editorial

On March 23, President Jack Hunt held a briefing with chief staff members of the university. I had the pleasure to attend this meeting as the new SGA President-elect. As your resource to the administration, I relay the information as follows:

1. We must study ourselves and decide who our major marketing competition will be and be aware of these facts. (Bell & Howell, American Airlines, Boeing Computer Services and Flight Safety are considered to be direct competition to Embry-Riddle).

2. Now that our accreditation is complete, we need to make a pit stop and check to make sure everything is in order and running properly.

3. We need to be competitively aware of what our competition is doing and look at this and the state of the economy in a real world application.

4. We need to look around and see what's working and what isn't and lean the system to make it function more efficiently and make it more accessible to the student.

5. We need to remember that we are here to serve the students; that is our job. We sometimes become too busy and forget this.

6. If we continue to work together during this economic period, ERAU will become the epitome of the aviation industry.

I was impressed with the honesty in which this briefing was given. Goals and objectives were mentioned with the students in mind. In seeing the concern of President Hunt to secure the function of Embry-Riddle, it makes one believe his love for the school and the students it revolves around is authentic.

Concerning last week's issue of The Avion, first, the statement made by the "Avion Copy Editor" of my "numerous public announcements concerning foreigners" leads one to understand that these announcements (see DINO, page 10)

No guts

To the Editor:

I found it ironic last week to read the line on the front page of the Avion that says, "the award-winning newspaper of college aviation," when on the next page, read the extremely biased editorial by Julien Oleon along with the slanderous letter to the editor entitled "disappointed". As an SGA representative I find it shameful and extremely distasteful that the Avion would publish such trash.

On the issue of the voter registration cards, I feel that it was not a failure. I came up with that idea last November as a way of avoiding the need to punch student ID cards to prevent a student from voting more than once. Last year there was a problem with students who wouldn't vote because they didn't like the idea of having a hole punched in their cards. There was also the problem of these students who had been here for several years and their cards were full of holes. Yes, there is a problem of getting students interest in the SGA elections, but I don't think it was the fault of the blue card system. I find it amusing at how people are quick to criticize but slow to recommend solutions of their own. Mr. Oleon also claimed falsely that students were denied the right to vote when, in fact, no students were denied the right to vote. Those students who did not have their blue cards were sent to vote in the U.C. where their names could be checked off on a student roster.

As far as "an SGA elected by a minority for a minority," its time you took a good look at the Avion newspaper itself. The Avion has a bad record in my mind for printing news and articles pertinent to the best interests of the "Avion minority," and not the student body majority.

In regards to the letter written by the disappointed name withheld, its obvious that this writer is ashamed of his own credentials. I have no respect for a person who slanders another through the cowardly means of an unsigned letter to the editor. Next time, at least have the guts to tell him to his face. Steve Charron Box 4328

Disagree

To the Editor:

Being an international student, I would like to mention I don't see Dino as a racist never mind being illiterate! I have had the opportunity to work with Dino and happen to believe he is a wonderful human being and by no means racist. I voted for him in this election and would vote for him again. I wish the person who wrote the "Disappointed" letter to The AVION had enough guts to sign his name and enough intelligence to think twice before writing. He doesn't know anything about what he is writing! Armin Irvani

Don't pay

To the Editor:

With the results of the SGA elections now history, it is time the results were analyzed. Four hundred and thirty-two students voted, a few were unable to because they lost their voting card, and 4600 people do not care to vote at all. Obviously, a lot of people do not care about the SGA.

Let's take a closer look at what the SGA does for us. They give us second run movies when there are 23 movie theaters in town. They give us parties with live bands, when we live in a city with numerous bars with live bands. They give out free yearbooks and they have speakers come here on days when most students are studying. While this is not all that the SGA does, these are major money spenders.

Since a small minority of people take part in these activities, let them fund them. If those 400 people pay $15 each, they can have parties and movies galore. If we need lectures, let them be pay-at-the-door events, and let those people interested in a yearbook pay for much of it, and let Riddle fund the rest of it. After all, it is advertisement for Riddle.

If those 4600 people were fed-up with the SGA enough not to pay their SGA fee this summer and fall, we might see an end to the entertainment of a few funded by so many. Now is the time to stand up. Don't pay your SGA fee. Sincerely, Bill Galbraith

Admit it!

To the Editor:

Two weeks ago, in my letter to the Editor, I was expressing my doubts about the integrity and competency of some of the members of "The AVION". Last week's issue clears all my doubts. Mr. Julien P. Oleon's editorial referring to the SGA elections was disgusting and showed his lack of competency and integrity. Mr. Oleon lost the election, and he cannot accept the fact. He is trying to blame his defeat on abnormalities in the electoral procedures. He also states that the elected SGA President was elected by a minority of students. Only 9% of the students voted, but the result was the opinion of the majority of the students who voted and were interested and concerned about the issues.

In my opinion, Mr. Julien P. Oleon got more votes than he deserved. During the election campaign he tried to take advantage of his position in "The AVION" and

AIAA/High as a Kite sponsors contest

By Rich Adams

The E-RAU student chapter of the American Institute of Aeronautics and Astronautics, in conjunction with High As A Kite kite store, will hold the first annual AIAA/High As A Kite Kite Contest on Saturday, April 4th at 2 p.m. at Ponce Inlet. There will be four competition categories:

Freestyle, largest kite, most original kite, and a kite fighting contest. Registration will be held in the University Center and at High As A Kite, 805 Main Street, Daytona Beach. Prizes and trophies will be awarded to the first and second place winners in each category. The registration fee is $2.00 per category.

On the club's business side,

Associate Professor James Ladesic will speak on "The Aerodynamics of Sails" on Thursday, April 1st at 6:30 in A-210. Mr. Ladesic may well be one of the most knowledgeable people in this field in the country. All members and non-members are invited to attend what should prove to be a very interesting and entertaining lecture.

The AIAA/Sigma Gamma Tau

Banquet will be held on the evening of April 6th at Kay's Coach House. An AIAA awards ceremony and an induction ceremony for new members of Sigma Gamma Tau will mark the first joint gathering of AIAA and Sigma Gamma Tau. Our guest speaker will be the Dean of the College of Engineering and Aviation Science, Dean Carl Lippold.

The cost for the Banquet is $6.50. All AIAA and Sigma Gamma Tau members and their guests are welcome. We hope to see several members of the Engineering Faculty there as well.

For information regarding any of these scheduled events, please contact Dr. Gupta in the Engineering Building, or drop a note in the campus mail to: E-RAU Chapter AIAA c/o Student Activities.

Army ROTC explains summer basic camp

By Cadet Capt. Anthony E. Disantls

Have you been asked about Senior ROTC Basic Camp?

Do you have friends who are wondering what to do this summer? Would you like to have them join you in Advanced ROTC next year?

If your answer is yes to any of the above questions, did you tell them about Basic Camp? There is still time for them to sign-up. Give them the facts.

The six week Camp is conducted at Ft. Knox for the purpose of qualifying applicants for enrollment in the Advanced Senior Program.

The training is designed to develop in the cadet the physical and mental characteristics required of a junior officer of the U.S. Army. It also provides the cadet with the opportunity to participate in outdoor practical work and acquaints him with group living, military environment, and military discipline.

Instruction is presented by selected personnel schooled in the methods of presenting formal instruction, marksmanship, and physical training. Experienced officers and personnel on duty from various colleges and universities maintain contact with the cadets on a daily basis and provide an accurate and objective evaluation of their performance.

Basic Camp graduates are fully eligible for enrollment in the Advanced Senior ROTC Program upon their return to college this Fall.

There are six opportunities to attend Basic Camp. Starting dates for each cycle are: 1st cycle 16 May 82, 2nd cycle 23 May 82, 3rd cycle 30 May 82, 4th cycle 6 June 82, 5th cycle 15 June 82, and the 6th cycle 20 June 82.

For more details, contact Capt. Arvai in glass office No. 10 or call Ext. 1125.

Hurray donors

By Jim Dillon

The blood drive held by the Sigas last Thursday and Friday proved to be a great success with 370 pints contributed. The Eta Iota chapter of Sigma Chi extends our sincere gratitude to E-RAU. Your cooperation and assistance was essential in this worthy cause.

On Saturday the Sigma Chi "Spirit Roll," for Easter Seals took place. The "Spirit Roll" was a promotion for the Easter Seals cause and consisted of members from Sigma Chi pushing wheelchairs from Ponce Inlet to Ormond Beach. With pledges from local businesses and spontaneous donations from bystanders, the "Spirit Roll" produced over $600 for Easter Seals. Everyone deserves a stroke for this one. Special thanks go to Vic Viobro, Tom Costello and Mike Clohisy for their efforts.

Congratulations Todd Lake on your nomination for the Balfour Award. Todd is Eta Iota's selection for the highest Sigma Chi honor which can be achieved by an undergraduate brother. The criteria for this award includes: scholarship, good character, fraternity service, and campus activity.

now he is doing it again writing all the garbage his editorial was all about. He is insulting the intelligence of the student body. The students did not buy it during the election campaign and fortunately enough, they will not buy it now. It would be better for all of us and for the reputation of "The AVION" if Mr. Julien P. Oleon is not allowed to use our newspaper in such an incompetent way. His very poor editorial, which cannot be objective, because he was one of the candidates, was more like a letter to Mom and Dad trying to explain with stupid excuses his little success in the elections.

Mr. Julien P. Oleon is just a poor loser. The team, Dino Santeusano/ Terri Litke won the election because that was the opinion of the majority of the voters. So, I say to Mr. Julien P. Oleon: "Why don't you just accept your defeat?!"

Vets see off space shuttle

By Laurie Ranfos
Secretary

The Vets Club had an excellent time last weekend. We went to Cape Canaveral to witness the 3rd launch of the Space Shuttle. The club took two vans down on Sunday afternoon and camped out overnight. Backgammon, UFO stories and Chuck's movies kept us and the Alpha Eta Rho crew entertained.

We had a fantastic view of the Shuttle. The only set back was a cloud that decided to block a good portion of the launch, but with all those camera's clicking away, I'm sure the pictures will be excellent. Bill Bernardicus had an accident with the van door and his thumb on the way back, but he'll be fine in no time.

Our next meeting will be this Friday, April 2, 1982 at 7 p.m. in the Faculty Staff Lounge. See you then!

Delta Chi relaxes

By Geoff Murray

With finals just around the corner, Delta Chi's social life has been on hold during the weeks and in slow motion during the weekends. A few brothers went out this past weekend, but most stayed home and caught up on some needed rest and relaxation.

However, the pledges have kept busy and are planning a fund-raising event for this weekend. They will be in charge of a booth at the upcoming Spring Fling where they'll be selling pizza and promoting the Delta Chi image. The brothers wish you the best of luck, boys.

On this coming Wednesday elections will be held for the Fall trimester. The competition for some positions is tough, and all the candidates will need votes, so don't forget to be at the meeting to cast your vote for the man of your choice.

Soon to come is the long awaited End of Tri Banquet to be held at President Hunt's mansion. This should be a good one. Also tentatively scheduled is a Brothers' Retreat. This is the finals fling finale - to rest your mind, wet your whistle, soothe your soul and generally clear the runways for a smooth slide into finals week. The trimester was great but all good things must come to an end.

AnF has party spirit

By Karen Schneider
AnF Information Officer

A big thank you to Capt. and Mrs. Thorhaur for the generous use of their house for Angel Flight's Wine and Cheese party last Friday. Also thank you to those who came and made the evening a success.

Our Beach party at Ponce Inlet turned out to be a lot of fun - such a beautiful day! Hugs and kisses to Eric Theisen for lugging around the volleyball poles and beer keg for us! Those Angels wishing to collect their share of the extra hamburger please contact Nancy or Karen (788-5558) - the meat is taking over our tiny freezer!

The AAS-AnF Dining Out is this Friday April 2, 6:30 p.m. (or 1830 for you military types) at the LeGrenier Restaurant, Ormond Beach. It'll only cost us $10 for the evening Angels - so there's no excuse not to come. Dress up in your best formal gown and we'll see you there!

Steppen out..

A look at eating and drinking establishments in the Daytona Beach area.

By Tony Pinto
Entertainment Editor

This week Steppen Out did a little steppen down to the "Hole," located downstairs in the Travel Lodge Hotel. Situated on the corner of A1A and Broadway, this bar is a pleasant variation in Daytona's string of hotel entertainment establishments.

When you're out for an evening, you're looking to be entertained. It's a matter of choices. What kind of music do you like to hear? Do you desire live music for dancing or seek background music to listen to over dinner? At the Hole you'll be pleasantly entertained by Disc Jockey, "Eddie the R", who spins golden oldies from the 1950's and '60's. During the course of an evening, requests may have you hearing the same song twice, but with 270,000 records to choose from, that rarely happens.

"Eddie the R," is a DJ who knows when to stop talking and start playing. More often than not a DJ forgets you went there to listen to music instead of himself. You won't find that here.

Taking a jaunt down memory lane could never be more nostalgic. You'll find a mix of the finest oldies and a sprinkling of E-RAU students who claim to be dedicated regulars. It's really no surprise if you encountered the Motown scene of years ago and seek an environment for the genuine recreation of those days.

One of the problems a bar like the Hole encounters is space limitation. It's good if you want to meet someone; you have no choice when it's elbow to elbow. In contrast, it is bad in the respect that if you're with someone who's intimate company you enjoy, you may feel a little crowded. Dancing is another story and should only be attempted by those with a high tolerance of others.

Drink prices are commensurate with size and it's a treat to have some special attention because you're from Riddle. With quite a few bars moving towards electronic advancements in bartending, it's nice to see service that brings you back for more. Personal attention leaves you feeling as though they're happy to serve you. Specials abound and if you mention you're from E-RAU, you'll get the red carpet treatment.

Whether you're an oldies nut or someone looking for a new twist in an evening out, the Hole is a bar to share good times with some friends. If not, chances are you'll make some new ones.

Until next week.

Major League baseball preview

National League; Expos look strong in '82 season

With the major league baseball season just around the corner, I thought it would be a good time to present my views on the upcoming season. The strike last year left a bad taste in many people's mouths. One thing baseball will be trying to do this year is to get people to forget the strike and remember the game for its traditional pleasures. The split season format has been thrown in the waste can this year and it will be a whole season this year since all the strike issues have been officially settled. This week I'll be looking at the senior league of baseball, the National League. The races were very close last year and the suspense should return again.

The National League's Western division owns the championship of baseball from last year. The Los Angeles Dodgers finally grabbed the brass ring and gave their fans a title. Unfortunately I do not believe they can repeat their performance this year. The Dodgers are a veteran club and they might have peaked last year. Fernando Valenzuela was the darling of baseball the first half of the season but failed to impress me the second half after the strike. While having seven wins and one loss the first half of the season, he was only six and six the second. Davey Lopes has been shipped off to the A's and the Dodgers really haven't improved themselves with any significant trades. They should finish second behind the Atlanta Braves.

I know, I picked the Braves last year. They really do have a good team. They just were slow getting out of the starting gate in '81. New manager Joe Torre may just be the difference the club needs this year. The Braves definitely have the hitting with Dale Murphy, Bob Horner, Caudell Washington, and Chris Chambliss. The chances of all of these guys having a bad year again are slim.

They have a decent infield with Chambliss and Horner at the corners and Glen Hubbard and Rafael Ramirez shoring up the middle. The pitching staff once again has the services of 43-year-old veteran Phil Niekro. One thing that has me leaning towards the Braves is their bullpen. Rick Camp was the main man last year by posting a 9-3 mark with a 1.78 ERA. Also in the bullpen is Gene Garber and Al Hrabosky. With three fine relievers like this, the starters just need to keep them close for seven innings.

Right behind the Braves and the Dodgers might just be the San Francisco Giants. Frank Robinson has instilled new pride in the Giants and it began to show last year. They ended up just three and a half games behind at the end of the second half. The Giants have a fine mixture of veterans and youngsters. Some of the more notable veterans are Joe Morgan, Darrell Evans, Jack Clark, Doyle Alexander, and Vida Blue. About the only thing the Giants need is a competent reliever. A weak bullpen may be their only downfall. If all the veterans enjoy a fine season collectively, they will finish on top.

Rounding out the bottom three of the west, I have to start with the Houston Astros. I'm still trying to figure out how they got into the playoffs last year. Phillie third-baseman Mike Schmidt hit more home runs than the whole Astro team together last year. One thing they do have going for them is a fine pitching staff. Nolan Ryan once again anchors the staff along with Joe Niekro, Don Sutton, and Bob Knepper. If J.R. Richard can come back, they will be awesome to face. Other than the pitching staff, there isn't much. They have one quality outfielder in Jose Cruz. The infield has Art Howe at first and newly acquired third baseman Ray Knight at the corners. The only thing a bench means to the Astros is someplace to sit. Bill Virdon is going to need mirrors this year to pull something out of his squad.

The Cincinnati Reds are strangers to their own Ohio fans this year. They just about traded any hope of even being competitive this year. Good-byes go out to George Foster, Ray Knight, Dave Collins and Ken Griffey. If the Reds front office thinks they can get newly acquired outfielder Cesar Cedeño to fill in the void then there really must be a Santa Claus. Besides Cedeño, the Reds still have the great Johnny Bench. Bench should be at third this year almost full time. Tom Seaver is once again the ace of the staff and may be the only one who can be counted on to pitch a strong game.

Down in the cellar we have the San Diego Padres. The big trade of the year for the Padres was in switching shortstops. They traded Ozzie Smith to the Cardinals for Gerry Templeton. That was but a trade in personalities and I think the Padres lost out. Dick Williams takes over this year after getting canned by the Expos last year.

Besides hard hitting Broderick Perkins and slick fielding Gene Richards, the rest of the roster looks like a Mexican menu. If you like longshots, this is where you put your money.

The National League's Eastern division has what I believe will be this year's pennant winners in it. That should be the Montreal Expos. I really can't find anything wrong with the Expos this year. The pitching staff is solid with Steve Rogers, Bill Lee, Ray Burris and Bill Gullickson. The bullpen has veterans Woodie Fryman and Grant Jackson to ease the load. The starting eight is one of the finest around. The big guns belong to Larry Parrish, Warren Cromartie, Tim Lincecum, and Gary Carter. Raines established himself last year as a speedster to be reckoned with on the base paths. He just might break Lou Brock's basestealing record this year. The biggest gun of the Expos is Andre Dawson. He was the N.L. player of the year last year. I could go on all day about the Expos. They finally experienced what the playoffs are like last year and should utilize it in winning in '82.

The St. Louis Cardinals will be breathing down the Expos neck. They had the best overall record in the N.L. east last year but failed to win either half of the split seasons. Manager Whitey Herzog has put together a well balanced team. Bob Forsch and veteran Jim Kaat are the mainstays of the starting pitchers. Last year's N.L. fireman of the year was Bruce Sutter and he should once again be how the Cards spell relief. Former MVP Keith Hernandez and George Hendrick are the meat of the line-up. They need to remain consistent if the Cards can remain close to the Expos.

Coming in third will be the much improved New York Mets. With George Foster coming over from the Reds, they might have finally found the consistent power hitter they have been searching for. Foster brings some great statistics over from the Reds and he won't need any formal introduction to New York fans. The Mets found two pleasant surprises last year in rookies Mookie Wilson and Hubie Brooks. Brooks showed he could man the hot corner at thirdbase and he also hit .307. Wilson was unheard of in the first half of the season but came on strong in the last portion. In the outfield besides Foster will be Dave Kingman, and either Ellis Valentine or Joel Youngblood. Valentine was slow adjusting to the natural grass of Shea Stadium after coming over from the Expos. The starting pitchers are the main weakness of the Mets though. New manager George Bamberger used to manage the pitchers for the Orioles and his staff once produced four 20 win pitchers one year. Neil Allen is the Mets bullpen savior. The Mets will have to push their starters and get runs early to keep them close in the late innings if they hope to be near the top in September.

The Philadelphia Phillies have a new look at several positions this year. Gone are manager Dallas Green, Larry Bowa, Bake McBride, Bob Boone, and Jim Moreland. Taking over the managerial reins is Pat Corrales. The Phillies have a solid outfield with Garry Maddox, Larry Mathewson and possibly Greg Gross. The infield has two former MVPs at the corners. At third is slugger Mike Schmidt and at first base is eternal Pete Rose. The double-play combo of Manzanillo and Trillo is one of the finest around. The Phillies over-all look fine. The thing that could be detrimental to the club is the lack of bench strength. If they have any injury to either Schmidt or Rose, it will be a long summer in Philly. Looking at the roster, I don't even see a back-up third-baseman or firstbaseman.

The Chicago Cubs have new motivation driving them this year. New owners have taken over and Dallas Green is the new general manager. During the off-season Green sent a letter to all the players that said they better be in shape for Spring training or else. Even though they have Ferguson Jenkins back and Larry Bowa, the Chicago June swoon will not be avoided.

Looking up from the bottom will be the Pittsburgh Pirates. Dave Parker is the Pirates power-hitting and Willie Stargell just can't be counted on to deliver like he used to. Bill Madlock and Omar Moreno round out any recognizable names left on the team. Did Kent Tekulve retire? The Pirates will probably make their September drive as usual and burn out.

That's the way I see the National League this year. The opinions expressed are strictly mine and if you have any comments please feel free to contact me. Next week it will be the American League's turn. David Frost, Sports Editor

Alpha Eta Rho rallies to second place finish

The members of Alpha Eta Rho showed what teamwork and sportsmanship really mean during Greek Week. They did an excellent job of competing and when the odds were against them they held together and came back with everything they had.

Alpha Eta Rho started out slow during the beginning of the week, placing fourth in both the pyramid and shopping cart events, but picked up momentum by winning both the frisbee throw and engineering egg toss events. They were in first place in the overall standings when, because Delta Chi complained about not understanding the rules of the egg toss event, the engineering egg toss was called over to give Delta Chi enough time to prepare for the event. When the event took place for the second time, Sigma Phi Delta won with an almost perfect throw leaving Alpha Eta Rho in fourth place with a broken egg. Alpha Eta Rho suffered another disappointment on the Friday in the tug of war event when they lost to Lambda Chi because of a technical call in Lambda Chi Alpha's favor.

Saturday came and Alpha Eta Rho knew they had to win a lot of events to pull up in the standings. They performed beautifully by coming in third in Dizzy Bat, second in the egg toss, first in the five legged race, third in the softball throw, second in the President's Flour Bowl, and first in the swim race. Only one event remained to determine the winner of Greek Week. Alpha Eta Rho didn't have enough points to win in the overall standings, but if they won the chariot race, they would walk away with second in the overall standings. Much to all the other fraternities surprise, Alpha Eta Rho showed up with a brand new chariot that had been built for they walked away with the chariot race and second place in the overall standings. Congratulations for a job well done and special thanks go to the pledges for helping us win them all Friday night and Saturday morning by the pledge class Pi who presented the Chariot to the fraternity right before the event. By this time, Alpha Eta Rho's momentum and spirits couldn't be beaten and

Of course, following any aircraft incident are a myriad of investigations and fact-finding mis-course a missing main landing gear. Reports indicate that the aircraft should be on line within seven days.

Wednesday's incident here at Embry-Riddle also has its share of follow-up action. According to McMahon, "Embry-Riddle has 10 days to investigate and send a report to the FAA and NTSB concerning the incident." Dr. DiGirolamo explained Embry-Riddle's method of investigation, "We have an internal mishap investigation group that will look at the incident to see if there are any areas where we can improve our operation. Hopefully we can learn from our mistakes." Heading up the internal investigation is McMahon, members include flight instructors, flight standards people and various deans.

By Brian Finnegan
Meteorology Lab Assistant

Remember all those great pictures you took of towering cumulous clouds and double rain-bows? Remember how much you wanted to show them off as soon as they were developed? Well, dig back into your cedar chest, dust off the scrapbook and share them with the whole school.

The E-RAU Weather Room staff is sponsoring our first weather photo contest. The weather is of tremendous importance to all of us and this contest is aimed at encouraging us to become more aware of our meteorological environment. Prizes, donated by Embry-Riddle, will be awarded to those entering the top three photos. The contest will be judged by Frank Wencil and Mr. Morris, staff meteorologists, and weather room lab assistants.

Entries may be submitted to anyone in the weather room between 6 a.m. and 9 p.m.

The rules are simple; any E-RAU student may enter. No size limitations are imposed, but all entries must be prints (no slides). Trick photography cannot be considered. The entry deadline is April 8, 1982 at 9 p.m. and the photos will be displayed after the contest. There is no entry fee and you may enter as many photos as you like. Photos will not be returned without prior arrangements.

First prize will be a choice between an Embry-Riddle wind-breaker and a year subscription to Weatherwise magazine. Second prize will be the item that the winner does not choose. Third prize is $10.00 credit in the bookstore.

Next time you find yourself looking around, don't forget to look up. There is a world of wonder in the sky.

THE BMW R80G/S. MORE TOURING. LESS DETOURING.

The BMW R80G/S allows a touring motorcyclist, for the first time, to follow his curiosity instead of just the interstate. Without exhausting himself in the process.

Weighing a scant 382 lbs with a revolutionary single rear swing arm that provides 50% more torsional stiffness, the G/S is, according to Motorcyclist magazine, "an absolutely brilliant handling machine on curvy pavement."

While, according to Rider magazine, it is "ideally suited for one of the best known gravel roads of all: the Alaska Highway and seems destined for the trip."

For that and much more. This 800cc machine will allow you to go, quite simply, where no touring motorcycle has ever gone before.
