GENERAL SPRUANCE'S SPEECH

General Spruance survived an airplane crash in 1961 that completely destroyed the aircraft and killed the pilot. In his speech, the General described the accident and told how the flight safety he had learned many years before helped to save his life. He showed slides of the remains of the aircraft and one wonders how anyone could have survived. What was left of the engine, fuselage, and wings was so badly burned as to be almost unrecognizable. General Spruance recommended that pilots and automobile drivers alike use a shoulder harness when at the controls, and learn the proper procedures necessary to survive a crash.

Since General Spruance is now a member of the Board of Trustees, it will be interesting to see what changes, if any, occur in regards to flight safety equipment and training here at ERAI.

General Spruance, in an interview on Channel 2 TV, indicated that ERAI may once again train military pilots in order to alleviate the serious shortage of pilots that faces the Armed Services.

General Spruance began with a talk on Vietnam. Unlike General Westmoreland, he gave his speech in his "5 star civilian suit" because he didn't want anyone to think that his views were the views of the U. S. Government. With somewhat ribald humor, General Spruance described his visit to Vietnam. He described the air traffic and supply problems at Saigon, and also related some of the military strategy being used to fight the Viet Cong.

COMMENT

To the lady who shows prospective students our fine school, and to anyone else whom it may concern, I would like to quote the STUDENT HANDBOOK on the purpose of our newspaper:

"The ERAI INFORMER is distributed weekly for the purpose of informing the student body of the happenings for that week. It contains such information as dormitory news, subjects of interest to the students and student opinions, Student Government Association news, notice of social events planned for the students, news from the various offices and departments, and the news of the week in general. It is a prime example of the growing school spirit at Embry-Riddle Aeronautical Institute and a great stimulus to increased communication among the students, faculty, and administration."

The INFORMER is not a "Gossip Sheet!" It is a newsletter that the students and the administration should be proud to have and to be able to distribute among those persons interested in Embry-Riddle.

EDITOR'S NOTES

Policies, rules, and regulations notwithstanding, it is about time the school did something to help bolster the morale of the student body. How many students have left ERAI because of the rather archaic policy that requires a single man (or a married man unaccompanied by his wife) to live in a dormitory, even though he is over 21 years old, where he is not permitted to have girls in his room except during certain hours over the weekend, and where he must drink his liquor behind a closed door. Such rules are understandable for students under 21, in which case the school is "in loco parentis," but not for a 30 year old man who has served in the Armed Forces. It would also be well to note that a student cannot withdraw his money from the cashier except on Monday and Friday. The Cashier's office accepts payments only on other days. It would be nice if the Cashier's Office were to stay open at least 3 days a week for cash withdrawals.
